THE HOUSING COMPANY

Building Homes for Working Families

Imagine... A time when the pace was just a little slower and neighbors stopped by for a chat. A time when people looked out for each other and gathered together inside to share in each other's lives. This sense of community still exists today – in neighborhoods built by The Housing Company.

Inspired by the past, these cottage neighborhoods are designed for the future. Each home incorporates green building products and practices in sync with the environment. And because of their modest size, the cottages have smaller footprints and use fewer resources and energy than typical new houses.

Look to The Housing Company for neighborhoods that recapture a sense of security, for residents and the environment.
